- Qualifying Examination Required. The Qualifying Examination serves as the first step in determining a student's readiness to undertake dissertation research. It is administered at or near the end of the time the student has completed most of the course work (but has not yet made a major investment toward the dissertation research). A minimum of one year must elapse between passing the Qualifying Examination and the defense of the dissertation. Only students in good academic standing are permitted to take the examination. The Qualifying Exam in Literacy, Language, and Culture is offered semiannually, once prior to the beginning of the academic year and once during spring semester. It is designed to be educative as well as evaluative. The exam consists of two components: a Common Knowledge Component given to all students seeking doctoral candidacy and a Specialization Component focusing on a student's area of specific inquiry in literacy. The qualifying exam is taken over a four-day period, with three days devoted to the Common Knowledge Component and one day to the Specialization Component.

- Preliminary Examination Required; The written exam consists of the student's dissertation proposal. The oral portion of the examination is based on the student's oral defense of the dissertation proposal.
- Dissertation Required. Students must register for doctoral thesis research for at least 16 semester hours.
- Other Requirements 4 semester hours. Students participate in a research project in collaboration with a faculty member or a team of faculty members and students. Four semester hours of credit are awarded for the project, requiring at least one semester to complete. Students must complete a training course sponsored by the Office for the Vice Chancellor for Research on the ethics of conducting research with human subjects. Students are required to submit an annual report of their academic and professional progress.
